Cost of Bail Bonds in Utah

The exact cost of a bail bond in Utah can vary. State laws specify that a bail bond can be no less than 10% of the overall bail amount and no more than 20%. Because of this range for the bail bonds and the range of potential costs for bail itself, the exact cost of each bail bond in Utah is unique.

What Are My Options for Paying Bail?

Fortunately, there are a number of different options available when it comes to paying for bail. One obvious option is that you can simply pay the full amount of the bail upfront, assuming that you have enough cash to do so. If you do not have the money to pay outright is to offer some form of collateral.

Collateral can either offset the cost of bail or replace it entirely. While collateral can be in the form of smaller goods such as jewelry, it is more typically in the form of a vehicle or property. In either case, the bail agent or court will take possession of the goods or deeds until the case is completed. It's important to note that failure to appear at court dates in a punctual manner can result in the collateral being seized and collected.

The third way of paying for bail is to seek out a bail bondsman to pay the bail amount. These are trained and licensed agents who specialize in helping out those who have been accused of a crime and securing their release in a timely manner. Such bondsmen also have well-established relationships with the local courts, which also carries a number of benefits when it comes to helping the accused.

How Does Paying a Bail Bondsman Work?

The biggest advantage in paying a bail bondsman for bail is that it reduces the amount you pay for bail. As an example, the court may set a $20,000 bail and set a bail bond cost of ten percent. Without a bail bond agent, you are stuck paying the full $20,000. With a bail bond agent, you are only paying ten percent (or $2,000) of that amount.

Other Benefits of Hiring a Bail Bondsman

- Money saved can go towards other legal fees
- Experts can find information on bail cases for you
- Gets someone out of jail quickly, reducing their chance of being assaulted in prison
- Reunites someone with their family quickly during a difficult time
- Helps the accused get in a better position to establish their innocence
- No matter what, it helps you get a better chance for a fair trial
