How Does A Bail Bond Work?

A bail bond is usually posted by a third party after a bond hearing. The following are a few common types of bail bond options in Utah;

- Cash Bond - This type of bond is paid with cash or a credit card. The defendant or members of their family pay the entire amount in cash. It is refundable after a court hearing.
- Property Bond - With this type of bond, a lien is placed on a property as a guarantee that the person will return to court when required. If they do not, the property is placed into foreclosure to cover bail.
- Surety Bond - It is a promise by a bails bond agent that they will pay a certain amount if their client fails to show up in court using collateral from family members. After their client returns to court as expected, a fee is taken from the money returned by the court.
